IRRIGATION.

letters showing that this could be readily done were not for several unfortunate conditions in our state administration. I shall not go into the details of this matter, as I have no desire to mix irrigation with politics.

I believe these obstacles are all sur-mountable, and that there will be nothing in the way that will stop us from reaching

MY IDEAL.

which I will now explain. Some of you may have traveled through New England where roads are bordered with houses and where there is nothing to show where one village ends and the next one begins; or through southern California where the train takes you for hours through a succession of gardens and orchards where twenty years ago was a desert. Twenty years from now, if my judgment is good, you may have the pleasure of driving from station to station in this valley, passing garden after garden on a cottonwood shaded street. I am not given to visionary flights, nor am I one of the enthusiasts who believe that all western Kansas can be irrigated. I do not believe that the "underflow" is supplied from some mysterious unknown source, nor that it is inexhaustible. Such theories should receive no attention except to show their falsity. A man attempted to prove to me the other day that the underflow in his vicinity was "sure enough" inexhaustible. The railroad company tested its supply by speeding its pumps up from three thousand to six thousand gallons per hour. The maximum speed of pumping would have irrigated fifty acres, and yet he was lowering the water on that short test on many hundred acres. The supply is not inexhaustible.
It is limited, and we can never irrigate all the land, even in this valley. But I want to call your attention to one particular in which you are especially fortunate. This valley has been provided by nature with an immense storage reservoir miles wide, hundreds of miles long and hundreds of feet deep; filled by rains and freshets and protected from evaporation. As the surplus steam in a boiler above a certain safe pressure limit escapes by the safety valve into the air, so, when this reservoir becomes full it flows into the river bed and escapes into the air. You may talk all you please about dams for artificial reservoirs (which will pay in some cases), still you cannot devise so practical a storage as that which nature has given you, and I submit that in general it is better engineering and a better public policy to let the water go into that great reservoir and pump it up when and where it is needed, than to impound it behind dams where it will evaporate.
I mention this partly because the extent of evaporation is not generally understood. While authorities quote a reasonable maximum and 6 inches a day as having been known once or twice in the world's history, I could tell you of fourteen and one-half inches evaporation in western Kansas in 12 hours.

There is another point I might mention that is not any too well understood.
You people have coined the word un-derflow, but the flow is slight. Water moves in the sand of the river bed, in an iron pipe, out of an aperture, or into the bottom of a well, exactly in proportion to the slope or pressure, and where the slope is 7 feet per mile the flow is about a mile a year.

Two things are needed in the valley —people and pumps. People who will cultivate thoroughly and who are, in each neighborhood, congenial among themselves. Pumps may be operated by steam, gasoline or wind according to the conditions to be filled.
You have canal companies with more water than people, others with people and no water. Capital that will control the lands and put onto them both people and pumps at the same time, may sell the lands at a figure below the value of a single crop of potatoes or alfalfa, and still double the amount invested.
It must, however, be done understandingly, and with a conservative policy as to water supply. I know of no class of investments in the United States that are safer than Arkansas Valley colonization intelligently handled, and I see no reason why we may not, after removing the few obstacles and securing the needed legislation, make the valley one continuous village of groves, orchards, gardens and houses.

Hon. D. M. Frost, of Garden City, president of the Kansas association, gave way to Mr. Stiffen, of Wichita. The latter represents a land investment company, which is putting in wind mill plants and forming colonies by placing each farmer on a twenty or forty acre tract.

It was resolved that this convention asks that the U. S. survey continue the examination of the water resources of the great plains, and that bulletins of progress be issued as speedily as possible.
Also that copies of the foregoing be sent to the secretary of the interior and to the director of the survey.

LETTER FROM SECRETARY COBURN.

EDITOR "GLOBE REPUBLICAN"— Although hurriedly called away from the largely attended and very enthusiastic irrigation convention in your city on the 26th, I was and am greatly interested in the work it was intended to promote, and from what I have observed along the entire length of your valley I am satisfied there is enough water within easy reach, regardless of the river, to make fruitful many thousands of acres of the very fertile soil in which the region abounded. The present generation and those who will come after will certainly be greatly indebted to such men as Capt.
Churchill and dozens of other enterprising co-workers who are the pioneers blazing the way to that prosperity which in the near future will surely abide in a section in so many ways highly favored.

Whether it is practicable to irrigate considerable bodies of the higher lands back from the river is I think for the present problematical, but this does not imply a necessity for abandoning those great areas where alfalfa and the sorghums, saccharine and non-saccharine with other crops which will yet be found adapted to dry soils and demonstrated to yield considerable crops even in the most unfavorable seasons, will make stockraising of itself a sustaining industry.
I am persuaded the people occupying a large part of our territory are just on the threshold of discovering a variety of ways and means for utilizing their acres in such a way as to yield them an abundant where heretofore comparative scarcity has too often prevailed, but in this connection I am glad to believe that your people feel the desire of the State's Agricultural Department to be useful and helpful to them in every worthy way possible and with every effort to the bettering of their condition and the enhancement of their prosperity.
F. D. COBURN.
Topeka, May 30. Secretary.

I have two little grand children who are teething this hot summer weather and are troubled with bowel complaint.
I gave them Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera Diarrhoea Remedy and it acts like a charm. I earnestly recommend it for children with bowel troubles. I was myself taken with a severe attack of bloody flux, with cramps and pains in my stomach, one-third of a bottle of this remedy cured me. Within twenty-four hours I was out of bed and doing my housework. Mrs. W. L. Dunagan, Bon-

"Many of the citizens of Rainsville, Indiana, are never without a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in the house," says Jacob Brown, the leading merchant of the place. This remedy has proven of so much value for colds, croup and whooping cough in children, that few mothers who know its worth are willing to be without it. For sale by City Drug Store.

Sometime ago I was troubled with an attack of rheumatism. I used Chamberlain's Pain Balm and was completely cured. I have since advised many of my friends and patrons to try the remedy, and all speak highly of it. Simon Goldbaum,

Let us remind you that now is the time to take De Witt's Sarsaparilla, it will do you good. It recommends itself. For

A Fishing Disaster.
Mr. Jackson—Hello, uncle! I thought I met you about half an hour ago going toward the millpond for a day's fishing.
Uncle—Dat was me, yassir.
Mr. J.—Why are you returning so soon?
Uncle—I done lit up wid a 'zaster, sah. Yo' see I war gwine full mighty careless wid mer mouf full of wums, an' Sam Oeler done come erlong an' gimme a suddint alam on de back an' knock dem wums down mer sopprus.
Now I gotter go ter de potticary man an' see if he kyan gib me sumpin'ner ter abstrap dat bait. I's bleeed ter hab dat bait to do any fishin', sar.— Vonkers Gazette.

Femininities.
Mrs. Gadders—I have so much trouble keeping a cook. I can't get one that will stay more than a week.
Mrs. Sauters (loftily)—My family is just the same size as yours, and I have no trouble.
Mrs. Gadders—Yes; I've heard that your cook had an easy thing of it. She told my chambermaid that she had hardly anything to do except when company came.—Pack.

WHAT DOES HE MEAN?
Miss Oldgirl—You must promise not to kiss me while I am unconscious.
Dentist—I shall do nothing of the kind.
Miss Oldgirl (with a happy sigh)— Turn on the gas.—Judge.

No Laughing Affair This.
We may smile at ladies smoking, But will think it's gone too far When the gentle damsels touch us For a fifty-cent cigar.
—N. Y. Herald.

Know How It Was Himself.
Col. Yerger does not think it is right to bestow promiscuous charity. A few days ago a beggar met him, and applied to him for pecuniary assistance.
After considerable reflection Col.
Yerger responded with a reluctant quarter and an expression of sympathy.
"Thank you, colonel," said the tramp; "I reckon you know how a fellow feels who has no education and has to deadbeat his way through the world."—Alex Sweet, in Texas Sittings.

Familiar to Americans.
Boy—What does feudal mean?
Teacher—Under the old feudal system one man had authority over a whole community, appointing his favorites to rule over the people and levying tribute on all citizens whenever he pleased. Do you understand?
Boy—Yes'm. He was a boss.—Good News.

Was That It?
"What little boy will tell why Lot's wife was turned into a pillar of salt?" asked the Sunday school teacher.
Freddy Filkins' hand went up, and the good lady nodded to him to give his answer.
"Because she was too fresh."—Truth.

Preclarity.
Bingo—I tell you, dear, I had to work hard last night.
Mrs. Bingo—So I judged by what I saw in your pocket this morning.
Bingo—What do you mean?
Mrs. Bingo—A workman is known by his chips, isn't he?—N. Y. World.

The Cause of It.
He blushed a fiery red; her heart went pit-a-pat; she gently hung her head and looked down on the mat. He trembled in his speech; he rose from where he sat, and shouted with a screach: "You're sitting on my hat!"
—Pearson's Weekly.

Impersonating an Officer.
Justice Stuffey—You charge this tramp with coming to your saloon and impersonating an officer, do you?
Grogan—Yis, sor; the blagard gave three raps on me solide duze, an' I passed him out a drinkin'.—N. Y. World.

Another Matter.
"Jones has skipped with twenty thousand dollars."
"He's a genius!"
"And he took your umbrella along, too."
"He's an infernal scoundrel!"—Hullo.

Arch.
Sally Gay—What a cunning little fellow Mr. Callipers is!
Dolly Swift—Cunning? Why, he's dreadfully bow-legged.
Sally Gay—Yes, but that gives him such an arch look, you know.—Truth.

Easy to Laugh.
Mrs. Brickrow—It does a body good to have Dr. Grinn when one is sick. He is always so jolly.
Mr. Brickrow—You'd be jolly, too, if you were getting three dollars for a ten-minute call.—N. Y. Weekly.

His Fear.
Prisoner—What does the judge say about my case?
Lawyer—He's non-committal.
Prisoner—Well, I'm glad of that. I was afraid he would give me seven years.—Judge.

Good Advice.
Father—Do you really desire to make my daughter happy?
The Suitor—Certainly!
Father—Then don't marry her.— Hullo.

Comforting.
Patient—Well, doctor, how's my lung?
Doctor—Pretty fair—it will last as long as you live.—Hullo.

no Wonder.
"The most disgusted man I ever saw," said Uncle Allen Sparks, who was in a reminiscent mood, "was a divorce lawyer. He attended a sale of unclaimed express packages and bought for two dollars and fifty cents what he supposed was an oil painting. When he took it to his office and unwrapped it he found it was one of these framed mottoes:
'God Bless Our Home.'—Chicago Tribune.

What He Remembered.
Bright Boy—Uncle George took me to hear a lecture on phrenology.
Father—Let me see if you can tell me what you learned?
Bright Boy—Some smart men have high foreheads, and some smart men have low foreheads; and some big fools have high foreheads, and some big fools have low foreheads. That's all I can remember.—Good News.

Might Change Her Views.
"Emily," said the young author, tenderly, "what do you think of my new novel?"
"Reginald," responded Emily, with a voice of which every tone spoke elo-quently as to her feelings, "Reginald, I have far too high a regard for you now ever to read any of your books."— Chicago Record.

Matrimonial Item.
"Is marriage a failure?" asked the elderly Spilkens of a former flame, who had been a party to a May and December marriage.
"No," she replied, with a glance toward her husband, in the next room.
"Not a failure. Only a temporary embarrassment."—Alex Sweet, in Texas Sittings.

Where He Kept His Property.
At a church meeting in one of the suburbs of Chicago the inquiry was made whether a certain lawyer of the congregation, whose financial affairs were somewhat involved, had "got religion." To which another lawyer present responded: "No, I think not, unless it's in his wife's name."—Argonaut.

Where Ignorance Is Bliss.
Mother—You are a great big girl, Fanny, but you are afraid to sleep alone, and there is your little sister Jenny, who is not half your age, and she is not afraid.
Fanny—You see, ma, she isn't old enough to have any sense yet.—Alex Sweet, in Texas Sittings.

New Species.
Dick Hicks—What kind of a bird is a limed?
Hicks—Never heard of the species.
Why?
Dick Hicks—The grocer has a whole box full of limed eggs.—N. Y. World.

Scarcity of Silver.
Guest (facetiously)—There are two spoons in my teacup. What is that a sign of?
Hostess' Little Son—That's a sign that somebody else hasn't got any spoon.—Good News.

New Light on the Subject.
Mr. Alkin—You see things in a different light since you married, do you not?
Mr. Nuwed—I ought to. There were fifteen lamps among our wedding presents.—Forget Me Not.

These Are Everywhere.
"You stand for office in England. In this country you run for it."
"But we have one sort of candidate in common. Those who lie for it."— Harper's Bazar.

Where Is He?
Breathes there a man with soul so dead Or falls to take good care of it, Who's handsome or accomplished, Is thus far not aware of it?
—Detroit Free Press.

SIMILAR DESIRES.

Mrs. Mulligan—I'd rather hev the vull family sick than you!
Mr. Mulligan—So would I!—Hullo.

Not One.
All lovers plead for just one kiss,
But when they're ready gone,
In their bright lexicon of bliss There's no such word as one.
—Truth.

No Use for Fire-Light.
Mrs. Percushing—Henry, I smell fire, I tell you!
Mr. Percushing—Well, I can't find any fire, and I've been all over the house.
Mrs. Percushing—Well, light the candle and take another look. How could you find it in the dark, you idiot?
—Judge.

Editorial Remarks.
"To make a long story short," observed the blue pencil, "the way to succeed"—
"Is to do the work you are cut out for," suggested the scissors.
"And stick at it," added the paste-pot.
And then silence reigned in the sanctum.—N. Y. World.

The Winning Hand.
She (half suspiciously)—Did you ever hold a hand that you would like to hold better than mine?
He—Only once, darling. Then I had four aces.—Raymond's Monthly.

On the Ocean Blue.
Sympathetic Steward—Lights bother ye, mum?
Very Sick Passenger—N-no. I think it's my liver.—Life.

A Terrible Encounter.
They had had a falling out, the two young men in the loud clothes, and this was the way the trouble terminated, while a number of horrified persons looked on.
"You're a chump!"
"Did you say I was a chump?"
"That's what I said."
"Oh, you did, did you?"
"That's what I did."
"Well, you better not say it again, that's all."
"I guess I'll say it again if I feel like it."
"Oh, you will, will you?"
"You bet I will."
"Well, you better not, that's all."
"Why hadn't I better?"
"That's all right, you'll find out quick enough."
Right here friends intervened and both young men received congratulations on having survived the encounter without injury.—Chicago Record.

Discouraged Pedagogue.
"How many hours are there 'n a day?" asked a Harlem teacher.
"I reckon there must be more than twenty-four hours a day now," was the reply.
"Haven't I told you more than forty times that there were only twenty-four hours in a day?"
"Yes; and yesterday I heard you say that the days were getting longer. I supposed that there must be about twenty-five hours a day now."—Tammany Times.

Object Lesson on the Chair.
Teacher (having directed the attention of the class to the various parts of a chair)—Of what use is the seat in a chair?
Bright Little Girl (who knows it all)
—I know.
Teacher—You may tell the class.
Bright Little Girl—To keep the people from flopping on the floor.—Judge.

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF FORD COUN-TY IN THE STATE OF KANSAS, B. Lombard, Jr., James L. Lombard, and H. W. L. Russell, trustees, plaintiffs, vs.
A. J. Webster, Orlando Bond, et al, defendants.

State of Kansas, Ford County, ss.
To the defendants, A. J. Webster, Allan Webster, (a minor under the age of twenty-one years), J. A. Bachman and — Bachman (whose given name is unknown) partners doing business under the firm name and style of J. A. Bachman & Bros., J. A. Bachman, George Anderson, Harry Lamberton, Laura Fiersheim, Emma Fiersheim and Maud Fier-sheim (minors under the age of twenty-one years), J. A. Bachman, Jr., (a minor over the age of fourteen years), Laura Fiersheim, guardian of the person and estate of Emma Fiersheim, Maud Fiersheim, Adolph S. Fiersheim, Jr., minor heirs of B. S. Fiersheim, deceased, and Andrew Boord, and each of them are hereby notified that they, with others, have been sued in the above entitled cause by B.
Lombard, Jr., James L. Lombard and H. W. L.
Russell, as trustees, in the district court of Ford County, in the state of Kansas, and that unless the said defendants, within the second amended petition of said plaintiffs filed in said court, in the office of the clerk of said court by the 10th day of December, 1894, said second amended petition will be taken as true, and a judgment will be rendered in said action in favor of said plaintiffs and against the defendants, Orlando A.
Bond, A. J. Webster, and M. W. Sutton and R. W. Evans, administrators of the estate of Alonzo E. Webster, deceased, for the sum of Four Thousand Six Hundred and Sixty-seven and 50/100 Dollars ($4,667.50), with interest on Three Thousand Five Hundred and Fifty Dollars from the 10th day of December, 1894, on One Thousand dollars from the first day of June, 1891, and on One Hundred and seventeen and 50/100 Dollars from the 26th day of March, 1894, all at the rate of twelve per cent, computed semi-annually; and a decree will be rendered against all the defendants in said action, reforming a mortgage executed on the 31st day of May, 1890, by Orlando A. Bond, Alonzo B. Webster, then in full life but since deceased, and A.
J. Webster to secure the notes sued in said action, which mortgage was intended to be on the lot seventeen and one-half (17 1/2) feet of lot number thirty-eight (38), and the east six (6) inches of lot number forty (40) on Front street, in the original town (now city) of Dodge City, Ford County, in the State of Kansas, but in the description of which in said mortgage the words "on Front Street" were omitted, so that said mortgage shall show that the lands and tenements therein mentioned are "on Front Street" in the original town (now city) of Dodge City, Ford County, in the State of Kansas, and for the and for the sale of said mortgaged premises and all the right, title, interest, and estate of all the defendants therein, without apprais-ment, as provided by law, to satisfy said sums of money, interest and costs of said action; and that upon the sale of said mortgaged premises, and the confirmation of sale of each and all the defendants in said action to said mortgaged premises, forever-barred and foreclosed, in accordance with the prayer of said second amended petition.
T. B. WALL and FERRY & SMALL, Attest and given under my hand and seal.
